

Monika Jones

Monika Jones is an English speaking business anchor at Germany's global TV broadcaster, Deutsche Welle. Monika is also one of Germany's leading bilingual presenters of international conferences and business events. Her regular clients include top multinational companies, government ministries, European institutions and NGOs. While her specialist areas include global economics and finances, Monika also has a lot of experience with topics such as digital technology, health and climate change.

Monika presented the live broadcasts of the European Space Agency's historic Rosetta mission as well as the launch of the European Union's Galileo programme.
